

Lecture 17. Ancient and Modern Humans

Michael Schatz

April 11, 2017

JHU 600.649: Applied Comparative Genomics

600.649
Computational Genomics:
Applied Comparative Genomics
Midterm Exam

Michael C. Schatz
mschatz@cs.jhu.edu

April 6, 2017
Time: 75 Minutes

Start here: Please fill in the following important information using a permanent pen before you do anything else! Your exam will not be graded if you use a pencil or erasable ink on this page.

Name (print): _____

Email (print): _____

Ethics Pledge: With your signature you certify the information above and you also affirm the following: "I agree to complete this exam without unauthorized assistance from any person, materials, or device."

Signature: _____

Date: _____

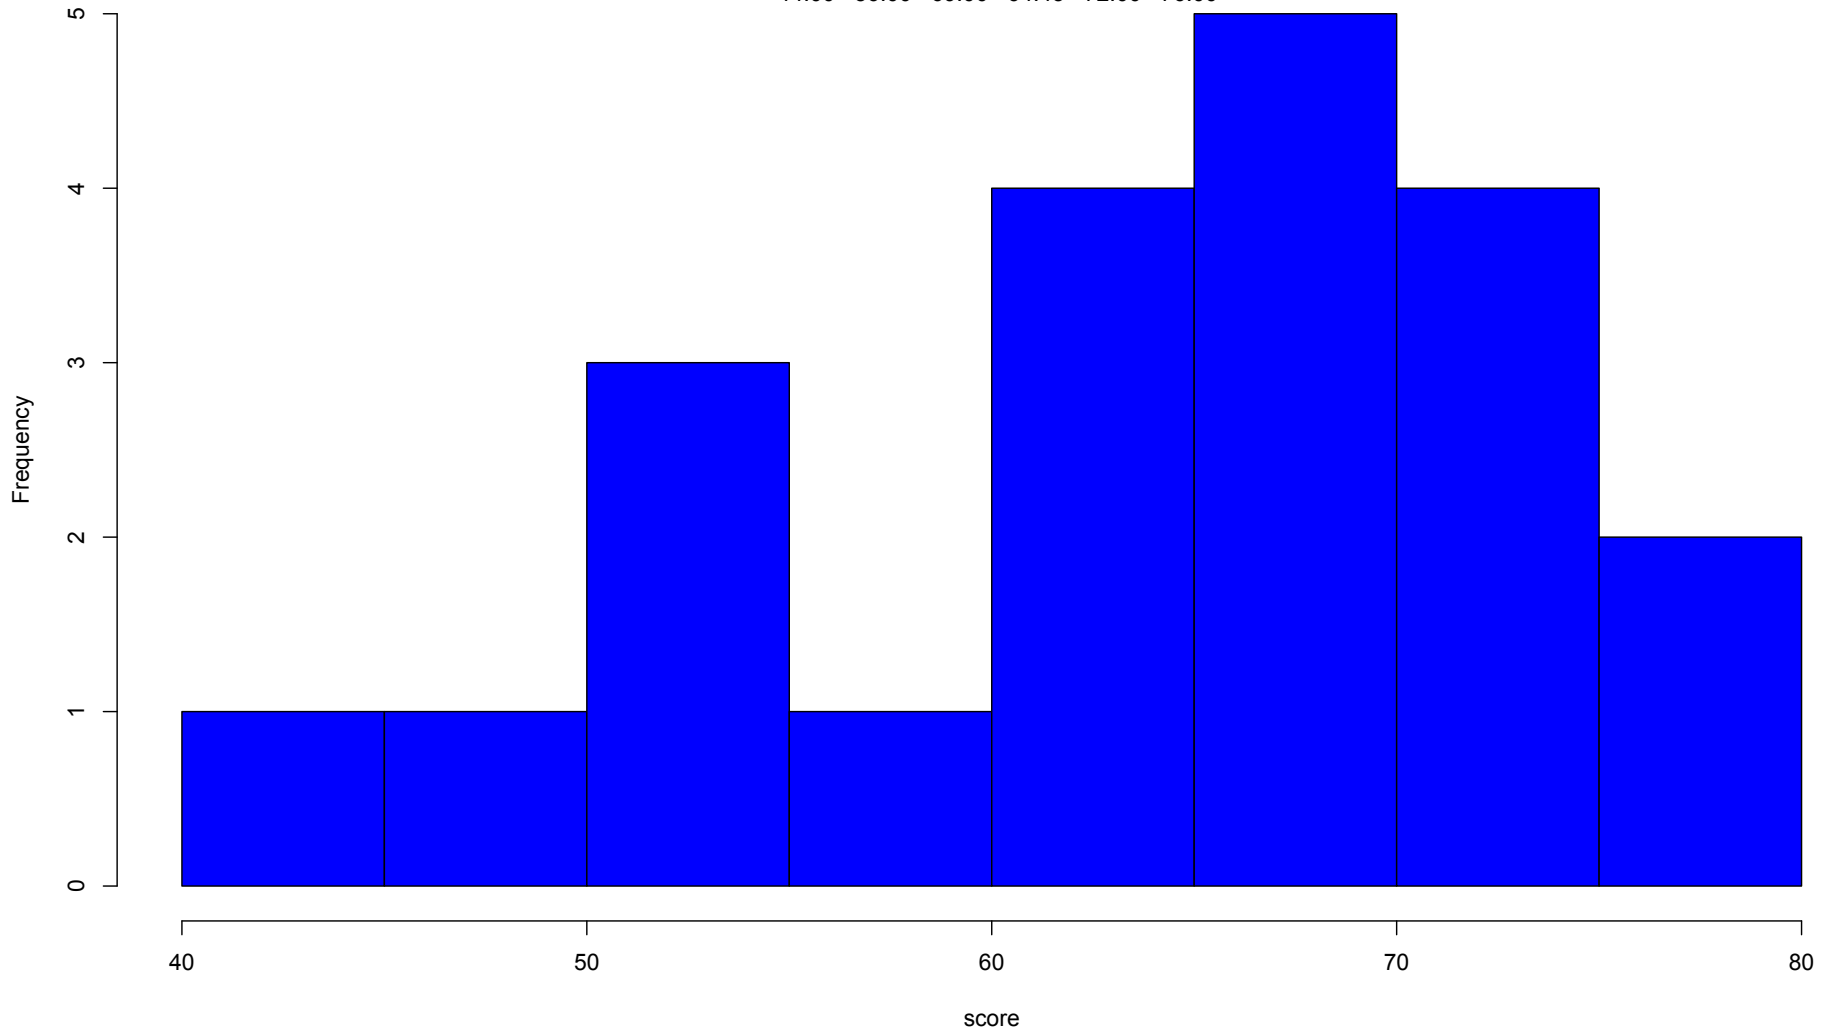

Instructions: Please read these instructions carefully before you start. Switch off your phones, pagers, and other noisy gadgets! You are not allowed to have anything but a pen (pencil, eraser) and this exam on your desk. You are not allowed to talk to anyone during the exam. If you have a question, please raise your hand quietly. When you are finished, quietly bring your exam to the front of the room but remember you will not be allowed back into the test room once you have left.

Do not open before you are told to do so!

You got _____ out of 80 points.

Exam Grade Histogram

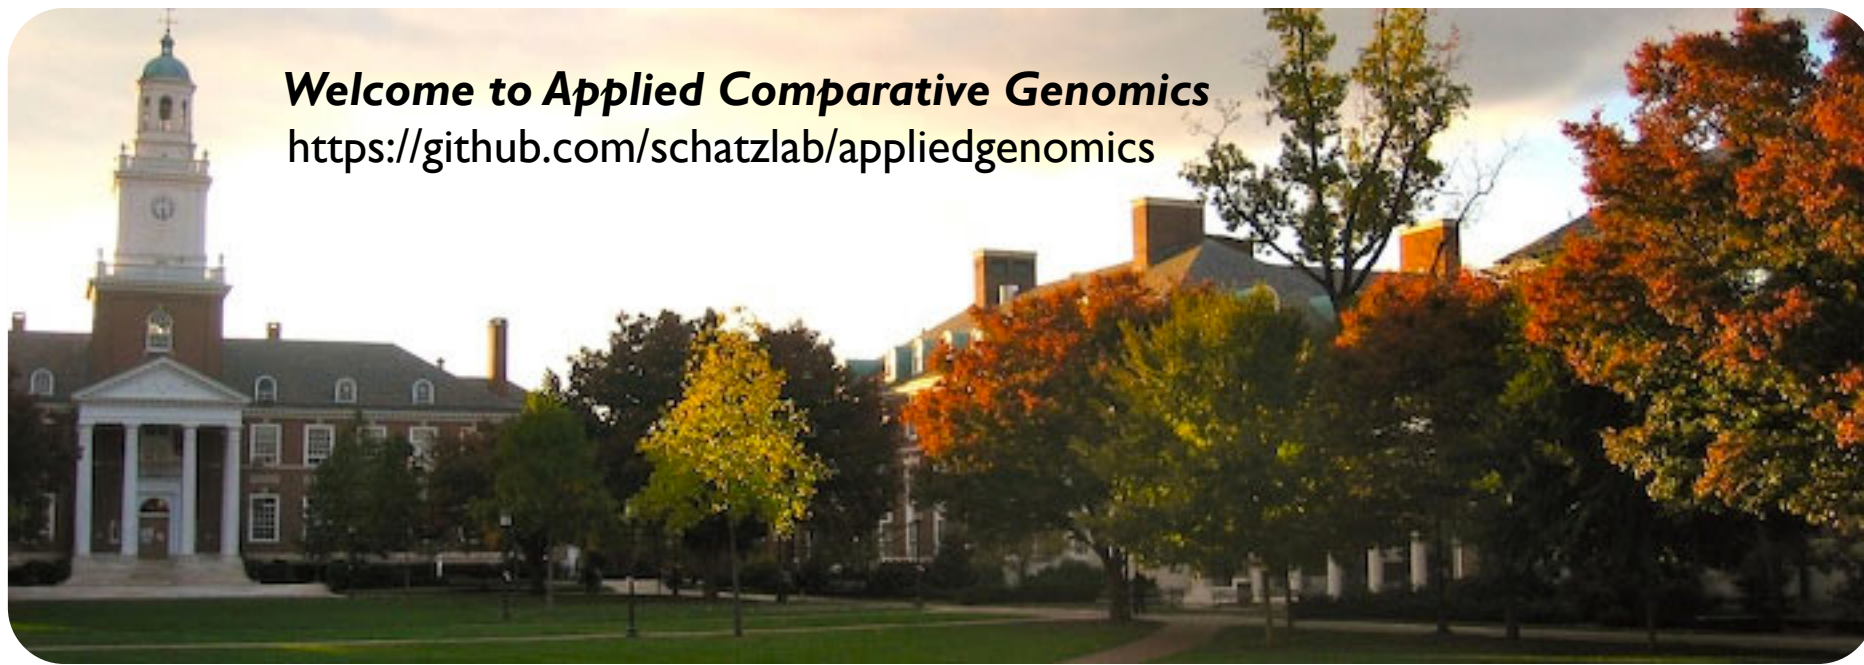

Min.	1st Qu.	Median	Mean	3rd Qu.	Max.
44.00	56.00	69.00	64.43	72.00	76.00

Next Steps

1. Questions on project?
2. Check out the course webpage

Welcome to Applied Comparative Genomics

<https://github.com/schatzlab/appliedgenomics>

Questions?